

3 July 1958

Dear Alan,

All of my colleagues who recently enjoyed your hospitality join in my saying thanks, as well as in commending you on a well-ordered but informal consultation.

We feel this was very much worth-while and trust your people have the same reaction.

I am sending a copy of my trip report with Joe for you to read. I am sure with his help we can readily resolve any uncertainties that may remain in our plans for future relationships.

On the occasion of your next meeting with your requirements group, please express our pleasure at having had the opportunity to exchange ideas with them and that we had a very high regard for the critical contribution which they can make in helping identify the things of most importance.

Upon your next assignment to Washington, you will be offered a place in the tenor section of my choir.

Sincerely,